Business: All fund raising and planning for events was put on hold until our April meeting, after we see what is happening in the United States and Michigan due to the Covid-19 Pandemic and measures enacted to prevent its spread, such as social distancing, event cancelations, and business closures. Jan Sitz suggested from the OSG Gallery Committee that members could start cleaning by going to go in the gallery 1 person at a time. We have had some information that the Les Cheneaux Art Council has some money for request and the LCAAC is considering requesting money from them. Amy was going to check to see if the Art Guide was still going to be printed. Reini was going to send out information on Michigan Medical Art call for entry— which is an exhibit at the University of Michigan. Art awareness: we should be keeping ourselves as artists and our items of art work in front of our followers and customers so we can be seen and have exposure. Anyone who is interested in working on this contact Amy. All members should be able to capture their art work with quality images by taking several different angles of their work, and if you need to have information about taking picture go on YouTube and look up a video of how to take picture of your work to show it at its best advantage. Katie Eberts going to send out an email for Save Art Space, an Upper Peninsula exhibition that will place billboards of art work along US-2 around the Naubinway/Curtis area. Entries must be made by May 15, 2020, and LCAAC member Katie is curating the works to go on the billboards.
